

Download An Atlas To Human Anatomy By Strete Creek

The superficial part of the muscle that lies over its deep part originates from the maxillary process of the zygomatic bone. It then runs sideling down and backwards to the masseteric tuberosity, a bone comb found on the lower part of the superficial side of the ramus of the mandible. So, the muscle fibers of this part are directed down and backwards.