The Secret: What Great Leaders Know and Do illustrates in a narrative format what Blanchard's Situational Leadership II model is all about. After taking a graduate education class in Narratives and Simulation and experiencing first-hand the impact of my own narrative simulations on learners, I value the instructional benefits of the narrative format for remembering and applying the elements of a model. The secret of great leaders is that they serve others; they listen well, they look for opportunities to act and serve. A good point to instill in the minds of leaders is this: "A person can serve without leading, but a leader can't lead well without serving". Over the holiday week, I read The Secret: What Great Leaders Know and Do by Ken Blanchard and Mark Miller. I have to admit, for most of my life I've disliked the term "leader." When you're growing up, it seems like in school, at work, and on sports teams, everyone is trying to make you rise up and "be a leader."
